SHIPPING A MURDERED MAN IN A CASK.

THE BODY IMBEDDED IN PLASTER-SENT FROM COPENHAGEN TO THIS PORT-THE BARREL

LAY IN THE CELLAR OF THE

APPRAISER'S STORES.

Dispatches from Copenhagen yesterday said that be story of a murder committed there had just nome out, and that the body of the murdered man bight be found in this city. The prediction of the dispatches was realized, for the body of a man was found in a cask of plaster at the Appraiser's Stores, where it had been lying since the first seek of February. The meagne details sent by the cable gave the information that one Philipsen, said to be a wealthy soap manufacturer, had committed some business swindle which had become known to a clerk or messenger named Meyer. To save himself from exposure, Philipsen strangled Meyer and shipped the body in a cask to America, but was arrested at Hamburg, where he was about to sail for South Africa.

The police authorities of Copenhagen appear to have informed the agents of the Thingvalla Impartlantic Steamship Company, who immedistely sent the following dispatch to their agents here, Funch, Edye & Co., and the Danish Consul,

H. M. Braem:

The dispatches were transmitted to Deputy Collector Dudley F. Phelps, of the Law Division of the Custom House, who immediately began an investigation. Charles S. Wilbur, chief of the special agents of the Treasury Department at this port, was instructed to search the Appraiser's Stores. After some difficulty Mr. Wilbur found the cask in the cellar of the Public Stores. It when he bored a hole in its side to sample the

Mr. Wilbur broke in the head of the cask and The head of a man protruded from a mass of thin plaster. The face was smeared with the sticky guff, but Mr. Wilbur was able to make out that the face was fair, had light whiskers and was that of a man about thirty-four or thirty-live pars old. The head was turned over toward the the shealder while the was turned over toward the pars old. The head was turned over toward me let shoulder, while the right hand was held up almost in front of the face. The fingers were cleanabed, and on one of them was a ring. When the plaster was scraped away the shoulders were seen. Their great breadth indicated that the was large, probably over six feet in height, body had been doubled up and thus forced the cask, and plaster had been tilled in and it, which had kept the body in a good around it, which had kept the body in a good state of preservation.

Mr. Wilbur sealed the eask and informed Inspector Byrnes and Special Depaty Collector Couch of the results of his investigation. It was next learned that a man, who said that his name was Smith, had shipped the barrel from Copenhagen as plaster, the forwarders being Welis, Fargo & Co. The Thingvalla arrived here on February 4, and on February 6 the barrel was entered at the Custom House. On February 10 it was transferred from the sampleroom, where it had been examined by George W. Jewett, to the Appraiser's Stores, where it was passed upon by Assistant Appraiser Charles E.

also gave permission to the Danish Consul to view the body. Mr. Braem telegraphed to Copenhagen yesterday for instructions, and it is understood that the State Department at Washington will direct the body to be turned over to the Danish authorities when they shall formally claim it to have the body sent to Copenhagen for identification.

RETURNING TO THE RANKS. PROSPECTS OF THE FASSETT RAPID TRANSIT BILL IN THE ASSEMBLY.

A NEARLY SOLID REPUBLICAN SUPPORT FOR THE MEASURE-AN AMENDMENT MAKING IT STATE LEGISLATION PROBABLY.

IBY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Albany, April 14.-Senator Fassett's Rapid-Transit bill apparently will be passed by the Assembly. It was in difficulties seemingly when the Assembly adjourned upon Friday, and threatened with defeat, but now its prospects are bright. Nothing has aided it more than the conflict over Senator Stewart's Police Justice bill on Friday, when ten Republicans united with the Democrats and defeated that bill. There has followed from Republican newspapers and Republican voters generally such criticism of that action of the ten Republicans that most of these gentlemen perceived that they had seriously imperilled their political standing by their course. Moreover, they recognized that Frederick S. Gibbs, of New-York, had drawn them into an apparent alliance with Tammany Hall when appealing to their personal friendship he had asked them to kill the Police Justice bill. Such an alliance with Tammany Hall they all repudiate to-night. They hasten to add that they have no intention of becoming Democrats and aiding Tammany Hall in its schemes. The criticism has also had an effect upon their of "Home Rule" to look rather favorably upon Mayor Grant's Rapid Transit bill and, perhaps, would have been led by him into supporting a motion to substitute that measure for the Fassets bill. But Friday's conflict opened their eyes to the fact that this would be voting directly in Tammany Hall's interests. The most significant indication that the ten Republican deserters on Friday have changed front toward the Republican camp was the following statement by Howard S. White, of Syracuse, Editor of "The Syracuse Standard" and one of the Onondaga County Assemblymen:

"I intend to vote for Senator Fassett's Rapid-Transit bill in precisely the shape in which is came from the Senate."

"Mr. Fish," said The Tribune correspondent, suggests that a compromise be made of this nature, namely : That the State Rapid-Transit Commission in the Fassett bill be dropped and Mayor Grant's five Rapid-Transit Commissioners be substituted for them."

"I am not in favor of such a modification," said Mr. White. "I believe we ought to pass Assemblyman Sawmiller, another Onondaga think that in voting for Gibbs last Friday I intended to aid Tammany Hall. As for the Fassett Ranid-Transit-bill, I have not examined it and cannot yet tell how I shall vote."

Assemblyman Burns, the third Onondaga County Assemblyman, also said that he was undecided how he would vote on the Rapid-Transit bill and that it was a mistake to classify him as a Tam-

Mr. White's statement, however, shows that there is a break in the ranks of the Republican Assemblymen, who several times lately have voted against their party. The very indecision of Assemblymen Burns and Sawmiller, of Onondaga, is additional evidence that Republican adverse opinion in regard to them is having its effect. Assemblymen Mase and De Peyster, of Dutchess County, who have voted with the Fish-Gibbs with it, and intend to vote in future with their Republican brethren on party questions. Their votes are, therefore, set down also for the Fassett

There was also indecision as to what they would do concerning the Fassett bill in the cases ton County. Assemblyman Johnson said: "I want a Rapid-Transit bill which will give Republican taxpayers of New-York some voice in the settlement of the rapid-transit question." is, therefore, apparent that he will not favor Tammany Hall Rapid-Transit bill.

It is said that one amendment will be made to Senator Fassett's bill in the Assembly. This amendment will restore the State character of the bill by providing that it shall apply to all cities above 100,000 inhabitants. Leading Republicans are convinced that Senator Fassett made a mistake when he accepted amendments to true bill which limited its operations to New-York alone; and that it would be of dubious constitutionality to have a State Eapid-Transit Commission with powers limited to New-York. But it will be easy enough to pass line bill again in the Senate with an amendment providing that it shall apply to a number of cities, and thus make it a truly State measure.

Senator Fassett said to-night, when informed that Mr. Fish suggested that Mayor Grant's Rapid-Transit Commissionners should be named in the bill and the State Commission should be abandened; "I shall not accept any such compromise. I do not approve of it, and, moreover, I am confident that we shall not have to make any compromise on the bill, but that it will pass the Assembly in just the form in which it came from the Senate. If any amendments are made to the bill they will be made at the suggestion of the transis of the bill and not of its opnoments." Senator Fassett's bill in the Assembly. This
